DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 8 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Zhou et al (US 6,064,690).

Zhou discloses a frame sync detection device and method, see Fig. 7, comprising;

a channel despreaders (80) which provides at least two each in-phase and quadrature phase channels, at least one I-sync processor (10) coupled to the channel despreaders, at least one Q-sync processor (20) coupled to the channel despreaders, an address controller (85) coupled to the one I-sync processor (10) and Q-sync processor (20), a first summer (60) connected to the one I-sync processor (10) and Q-sync processor (20) and a comparator (83) coupled to the summer.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zhou et al as applied to claim 8 above respectively.

Zhou et al disclose all the subject matter claimed, as explained above, except for the channel spreader to be frequency hopped spread spectrum type. However, it is well established in the art that direct sequence spread spectrum (DSSS) and frequency hopped spread spectrum (FHSS) are alternative technologies and thus would have been an obvious matter of design choice to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made, lacking criticality of employing FHSS as opposed to DSSS in a receiver as disclosed by Zhou et al.

6. Claims 18 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zhou et al as applied to claim 17 in view of Rhodes et al (US 5,909,437) .

Zhou et al disclose all the subject matter claimed, as explained above, except for the device being implemented in ASIC or FPGA. Rhodes et al describes that ASIC or FPGA is used to implement a deprecoder, see col. 16, lines 31-38. Thus, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to implement the receiver of Zhou et al with ASIC or FPGA for the purpose of taking advantage of know benefits of ASIC or FPGA implementation such as application specific design and programmability.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 1-7,20 and 21 are allowed.

8. Claims 11-16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
